

Everyday Environments

Children engage and will learn best in their everyday environments, the places in which they spend most of their time. Your Key Worker will visit you in your home, educational or community setting.

Your Key Worker will help you to;

- develop strategies to support the goals you have identified for your child
- determine how to use these strategies in everyday routines.

In the education or community setting the Key Worker will work with staff to ;

- ensure that there is consistency between home and the centre in the strategies used to support your child.
- develop resources to support your child's meaningful inclusion in the program.

Strengths - Based

A strengths-based approach focuses on what 'works well' for your child and for your family. Having identified how your child learns best, strategies are used to help develop other areas such as;

- play skills
- communication skills
- sense of belonging
- independence

Inclusion Support Service

every child, every opportunity

Your Early Links Key Worker

Each child and their family have a main contact person called a Key Worker. Your Key Worker is one of the team of Allied Health professionals and specialist Early Childhood Early Intervention teachers working together to support you and your child. Your Key Worker brings the team's combined expertise, knowledge and resources to support your child and family. Together, you and your Key worker will decide which members of the team to involve in each phase of your child's program. Your Early Links Key Worker is also able to support you in coordinating other external supports and in accessing the local community.

Child and Family Centred Practice

Your family's culture, values and beliefs are the most important influences in your child's life. You are in the best position to know your child and family's strengths and needs. Your Key Worker will team with you to identify the goals you would like to see your child achieve. We will work with your family to build your capacity to exercise choice and control in working toward your goals, and in the planning and delivery of supports.
